Extending Its Control

Report That the Steel Corporation Is Negotiating For Southern Plants.

Move Will Probably Have a Material Effect on Present Situation.

The General Strike Order of President Shaffer Becomes Effective To-Day.

(Associated Press.)
New York, Aug. 10.—A report generally circulated in well-informed circles in this city, and not denied, is to the effect that the United States Steel Corporation is making arrangements for the control of all the Southern iron and steel works. Such a step, should the negotiations be successful, it is believed would have a material effect on the steel strike, as the Amalgamated Association has entirely confined its efforts to unionize the works to the northern and western fields.
It is stated authoritatively that conferences have been held recently in this city between the Steel Corporation officials and the capitalists who are largely interested in the southern field.
The General Strike.
Pittsburg, Pa., Aug. 10.—The general strike order of President Shaffer, of the Amalgamated Association, becomes effective to-day, and the army of iron, steel and tin workers, to which it is addressed, is expected to throw down its tools at the close of the last turn.
At the strike headquarters all was quiet and the Carnegie building, from which the steel interests are directed, was quieter than on an ordinary business day.
With the opposing sides at the parting of the ways there is still much talk of a settlement. Strong appeals have been made to both President Shaffer and President Gompers, asking that they throw their influence toward a settlement, and various plans for averting a general strike have been discussed and offered by disinterested men on the outside. There may yet come a powerful peacemaker with a form of compact that will be accepted by both sides, but for the present the strike seems inevitable.
Union Recognized by Miners.
Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 10.—The executive board of the United Mine Workers of America, in session here, has officially recognized the Steel Union.

Is Going To Retire

Chauncey M. Depew Has Decided to Give Up the Interviewing Business.

Complains That Fictitious Reports of His Speeches Have Been Published

(Associated Press.)
London, Aug. 10.—"I am going to retire from the interviewing business permanently," said United States Senator Chauncey M. Depew to a representative of the Associated Press to-day. "I have served my full term and have generally enjoyed it, but there have been so many fictitious and erroneous reports of my sayings and speeches since I arrived in Europe this summer, that I have concluded to give up the job."
"I have been seriously misquoted in an American paper concerning the efforts of the European governments to offset American inroads into their trade and manufactures. Observation of this movement leads to the conclusion that while the European governments view with alarm the increasing inroads of American products, it is impossible that they should successfully combine against them."
"As a United States senator I am precluded from discussing Lord Kitchener's proclamation, which, undoubtedly, was the most important feature of English politics this week. It is bound to create wide-spread comment, appearing as it does on the day Lord Milner is returning to South Africa. I presume Mr. Balfour and Mr. Chamberlain will enlighten us on the subject at Blenheim to-day, and it would have been a pleasure to me to hear them and witness the demonstration at the Duke of Marlborough's charming palace, had I not thought that my presence there might be misconstrued in the United States. It is hopeless to expect European intervention. No matter how much the people sympathize with the heroic conduct of the Boers, governments are forced to determine exactly what effect intervention is going to have for the Boers and where they themselves stand when England declines their demands."

FINANCIAL RETURNS

Just Issued Show That Last Year the Revenue Increased $4,118,000 Over Previous Twelve Months.

(Special to the Times.)
Ottawa, Aug. 10.—The financial returns issued to-day for the year ending June 30th last show the revenue to be $52,010,000, as against $50,892,475 for 1900, or an increase of $1,118,000 for the past fiscal year. The expenditure increased by $3,314,155, last year's being $44,129,046. The capital expense was $10,412,813, an increase of $1,753,441 over 1900. But there are some accounts yet to come in, and until then it will be impossible to give the surplus of revenue over expenditure. July figures show a slight decrease in revenue and an increase in expenditure.

ITALY SCORCHED

Vineyards Have Been Ruined—Sea Bathing Has Been Abandoned Owing to Heat.

(Associated Press.)
London, Aug. 10.—Telegrams from Rome to-day says nothing like the heat wave, which is scorching all Italy, has been known within living memory. The thermometer in many parts of the country registered 43 centigrades in the shade. The vineyards in the whole districts have been shrivelled up by the sirocco and ruined to the very roots, as though set on fire. The air in the province of Syracuse is barely respirable, and the sea-water is so warm that bathing has been abandoned. The people have been forced to sleep in the open air.

THE LATE EMPRESS.

Funeral Services Were Held at Cronberg This Morning—Police Precautions.

(Associated Press.)
Cronberg, Aug. 10.—The church bells have been tolling throughout the day. The Empress, Crown Prince and other Princes drove over from Homburg this morning and were present at the reading of prayers by the Bishop of Rijn on the side of the coffin of the Dowager Empress. A requiem service was said in the old Catholic church. Bishop Reventzen eloquently discoursed on the virtues of the deceased.

All the Italian workmen at Cronberg have been sent to Frankfurt or have been ordered not to leave their residences. The military and police regulations are of the most drastic nature and the facilities of newspaper correspondents are much curtailed. Tall masts with Prussian flags draped with crepe have been erected in the streets of the village, which is full of troops, and is a scene of great bustle. Officers and mounted orderlies and other messengers are hurrying to and fro, completing arrangements for the funeral.
Emperor William has conferred on Professor Revers the title of privy secretary, and has also bestowed an order on Dr. Spielhagen, who, with Prof. Revers, attended the Dowager Empress during her illness. In addition the six ladies in waiting of the deceased Dowager Empress have received red cross medals.
It is understood that Prince and Princess Frederick Charles of Hesse will inherit Friederichof. The Princess Margaret is the youngest daughter of the deceased Dowager Empress.

Canada Cup Contest

The First of the Series of Five Races is Taking Place To-Day.

Canadian Challenger Invader Beaten by the Yacht Cadillac.

Cutago, Aug. 10.—The first of the series of five races for the international yachting championship of the Great Lakes is being sailed off to-day at Chiogo, by the Royal Canadian Yacht Club's Invader and the Detroit Boat Club's Cadillac.
The day broke fine and clear with a light breeze from the west, which later gradually hauled northwest and freshened.
It is rumored that the judges intended to remeasure each yacht's sail area this morning, but finally postponed the remeasurement, both skippers agreeing that the results of to-day's race should stand even if some slight change in canvas should be found necessary before Monday's race.
The Start.
Chicago, Aug. 10.—At 10:50 the ten minute preparatory gun was fired from the judge's boat, which already was being signalled, depending on the two races may begin the real manœuvring and jockeying for position, and it was noticeable that the Canadian yacht was every bit as quick in the starts as Cadillac. Captain Jarvis also displayed the clever seamanship for which he is so justly famed, and allowed the Invader to keep the lead of it when the final starting gun was fired. A few seconds and the line was crossed. The Canadian yacht, and the response of the great crowds of spectators, about and ashore found vent in a rousing cheer.
It is calculated that if the breeze holds the triangular course of 21 miles should be sailed in three hours.
The Race by Bulletin.
Chicago, Aug. 10, 11 a.m.—The boats have just crossed the starting line. Invader in the lead.
Carter Harrison Crib, Lake Michigan, Aug. 10.—The starting gun was fired thirty seconds after 11 o'clock (month). The yachts are sailing the north course.
11:15 a.m.—Cadillac is leading by several lengths, and is gaining to the north.
11:18.—Cadillac rounds the first buoy considerably in the lead, and is now starting on the second leg before the wind.
11:22.—Invader appears to be nearly abreast of Cadillac.
Four Mile Crib, 12:55 p.m.—Invader apparently turned the second buoy at 12:53, having passed Cadillac on this leg.
1:23.—Cadillac seems to be to the leeward of Invader. The latter is leading slightly. Both are working magnificently against the wind.
1:45.—The distance between the boats is widening, but one seems to be as speedy as the other.
Carter Harrison Crib—1:50.—Invader is the leader by half a mile and apparently pulling away.
Chicago, Aug. 10.—1:54 p.m.—Cadillac crossed the line at 1:47 p.m. (unofficial). Invader is about a quarter mile behind.
1:56.—Invader finished nine minutes, official time, after Cadillac.
Columbia vs. Constitution.
Batesman Point, Aug. 10.—Columbia finished the race in 2:01. Constitution, a 15-mile boat to windward and return, the course being south southwest. The yachts started with Columbia in the lead and on Constitution's weather bow. The time of the start, as seen from the shore, was as follows: Columbia, 1:01:10; Constitution, 1:01:22.

Block House Near Bradford Captured by Boers After Severe Fighting.

(Associated Press.)
London, Aug. 10.—A dispatch from Lord Kitchener, dated from Pretoria to-day, says:
"A block house near Bradford, Orange River Colony, was rushed and captured by the Boers after severe fighting, on the night of August 7th."
"Elliot has captured 70 prisoners and large quantities of stock and wagons, which he is sending in."
"No details have been received."
Mail dispatches from Lord Kitchener, issued to-day in a parliamentary paper, says his constant endeavor has been to improve the fortifications along the lines from active service. The garrisons of the railways have mostly been withdrawn.
A spirited narrative of the ejection of General Dewet from Cape Colony concludes with the statement that the raiders undoubtedly received a number of recruits from the Colonial Dutch, an ample supply of food and timely information.
Lord Kitchener received certain information that Dewet intended to attack Capetown, while Gen. Botha, as soon as he heard that the concentration in Cape Colony was effected, was to enter Natal with 5,000 picked horsemen and make for Durban.
PREMIER BARTON'S LETTER.
Says the Presence of Hon. W. Mulock at Commonwealth Ceremonies Was Highly Appreciated.
(Special to the Times.)
Ottawa, Aug. 10.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier has received a letter from Premier Barton, of the Commonwealth of Australia, thanking Sir Wilfrid for the representation Canada sent to the opening of the Commonwealth parliament. It says:
"The presence of Hon. W. Mulock was highly appreciated and his representation of your Dominion enhanced the importance of the most historic event in the history of Australia."
"The action of your government was viewed with much satisfaction by Australians, and unquestionably emphasized the vastness and solidity of the great British empire."

BIG BLAZE AT ARMSTRONG.

All the Larger Business Houses Were Destroyed by Fire Which Broke Out Early This Morning.

Vancouver, Aug. 10.—The town of Armstrong, in the centre of the four mills industry, was swept by fire this morning, all the larger business houses going up in smoke. The losses aggregated $8,000 with insurance of $18,000.
The fire broke out shortly after 2 o'clock, having been started by a man named Eagles, who used a tin of coal oil in lighting a fire at the side of Wood, Cargill & Co.'s building. Eagles confessed this morning, and was arrested.
Other losers besides this firm are Hardy, Wright & Co., general store; Burns, druggist; Fraser, Patchett & Co., hardware; B. Francis, machinery; Hawkins Bros., butchers; Forester hall; Masonic hall; Canadian Pacific freight shed, and four dwellings.
The fire had burned out in one hour, but was very fierce while it lasted. Nothing was saved except by Burns and Francis, who have one-quarter of their stock each. Two families are homeless, having lost everything.
The C. P. R. agent's house and the hotel were saved by hard work, the former being protected by a carload of potatoes between the burning buildings and the station. The hotel was saved by wet blankets.
All the buildings will be rebuilt. The four mills were saved by their own waterworks.

Soldiers Should Be Encouraged in Rifle Shooting—Lessons of the War.

Lord Roberts, in presenting the prizes at the close of the National Rifle Association meeting, delivered an interesting speech on rifle shooting.

Every woman who is conscious of feminine irregularities or disorders from strain or any other cause, should begin at once the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It promptly corrects all female irregularities, dries the drains which are so debilitating, and tones the nervous system.

I had falling of internal organs and had to go to bed every month; had irregular menstruation which would sometimes last ten or twelve days, writes Mrs. Alice L. Holmes, of Coalingburg, Pa. "I had also indigestion so bad that I could not eat anything hardly. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and Golden Medical Discovery cured me. I took three bottles of the Favorite Prescription and one of the Golden Medical Discovery."

Out of Sorts.

Carelessness and neglect, and oftentimes willful disregard of Nature's laws puts the system out of sorts.

Harried, neglected and irregular meals cause most of the trouble.

No wonder the stomach revolts—goes on strike. It's functions are so necessary to your daily health that when it doesn't act properly your entire body suffers.

Bowels clogged, liver inactive, blood impure, bad taste, coated tongue—you feel all pestered out—and you look it.

The result is indigestion, biliousness and constipation, followed by more serious complications if the body's natural functions are not restored at once.

To all such sufferers there is a sure, safe, economical and palatable cure—that is time-tested, never-failing Abbey's Effervescent Salt. A laxative that never gripes, gentle, but certain. It gets the bowels back to their normal action. Tones up the stomach. Liven up the liver. Makes the entire system right as a trivet.

A REVOLUTION IN BUTTONS.

One of the last surviving of the old customary laws, now almost forgotten, but considered of great importance in maintaining one branch of Sheffield trade, was that directed against covered buttons.

The town dealt largely in horn buttons of different kind for common wear, as well as in metal and plated buttons for the better class of coats, waistcoats, and gaiters.

From 1720 to the end of the century the iron annular seal that there was considerable though little encouragement to these prosecutions.

The law, though it long remained unenforced, fell from that time into desuetude.—The Athenaeum.

Pale and Dejected.

THE TRYING CONDITION OF MANY WOMEN.

Subject to Headaches, Dizziness and Heart Palpitation They Grow Discouraged and Prematurely Old.

From the Review, Windsor, Ont. "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is the only medicine that ever gave me any real benefit."

"I thought myself it was consumption, I had a constant rattling cough, and a constant feeling of languidness. My blood seemed to have turned to water, and I was very pale, and a feeling in my chest as though some foreign substance was lodged there."

The slightest noise made me nervous; I was dejected all the time and could not scarcely do any household work. I tried medicines, but they did not help me in the least. Doctors did not seem able to help me or tell me what ailed me, although their bills increased with alarming rapidity. I grew so weak, and so dependent that finally I decided to take a trip to Colorado to see if a change of climate would benefit me.

While contemplating this trip I read in a paper one day the testimonial of a person whose symptoms were almost identical with my own, who was cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I decided to give them a trial and purchased a box. When that box was done I got another, and found gradually that the pills were helping me. The trip to Colorado was abandoned, and I continued using the pills until I had taken eight or nine boxes when I felt like an altogether different person.

From a pale, thin flannel person, I became the picture of health, and felt it too. It is several years since I used the pills, and I have not had any return of the trouble. I am positive Dr. Williams' Pink Pills saved me from an early grave, and I cannot recommend them too highly to those who are afflicted as I was."

It is the mission of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to make rich, red blood, nourish the nerves, tissues and various organs of the body, and thus by reaching the root of the trouble, drive disease from the system. Other medicines act only on the symptoms of the disease, and when such medicines are discontinued, the trouble returns—often in an aggravated form. If you want health and strength, be sure the full name, "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People," is on the wrapper around each box.

If your dealer cannot supply you the pills will be sent postpaid at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, by addressing the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

LABOR DAY CELEBRATION.

Sports and Parade Committee Met Last Evening to Further Arrangements for Festivities.

The sub-committee having in charge the arrangements for the sports and parade in the coming Day Labor celebration held a meeting last evening and further arrangements considerably. The programme was drafted and it will include 31 events. There will be a baseball match at the Caledonia grounds and bicycle races at Beacon Hill, for which substantial prizes will be awarded. In regard to the parade the committee reported that there will be fully 25 floats, many of which will be under construction. This in itself will constitute quite an attractive parade, but supplemented by other features it can readily be seen that the procession will be one of the largest ever held in the city.

The committee also recommended that the Calithonian band from the tracks be engaged. The Fifth Regiment band has been engaged for the entire day, and the City band for the procession. These, together with visiting musical organizations, should supply all music necessary.

The general committee will meet at the Pioneer hall on Monday evening next when all the sub-committees are expected to make their final reports.

The neighboring cities are holding no celebration on Labor Day in order to make that here a united one. At a meeting of the trades and labor council of Vancouver, a few evenings ago, it was decided to prepare no programme for a demonstration there in consideration of the big celebration arranged to take place in Victoria.

From the very first it gave me much relief, and every day's use showed a marked improvement. I used in all six boxes, and it has completely cured me. It certainly does all claimed for it, which I cannot say of scores of other remedies tried, and I feel it my duty to attest my appreciation of anything so worthy." Royal Party Compelled to Cut Short Time of Victoria Visit

Governor-General Suggests That Programme of Citizens' Committee Be Remodelled.

It has now been definitely decided that the visit of their Royal Highnesses the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York to this city will be only for a day. The party will arrive at 11 a.m. on October 2nd and leave at 1 p.m. the day following. The Governor-General has approved in general the programme submitted by the citizens' committee, but suggests that in view of the cutting short of the time of the visit it be remodelled. The following communication received from B. B. Powell, private secretary to the Lieut. Governor, will explain the matter:

The 9th of August, 1901.
At Government House, Victoria, B. C.
Sir—I am authorized to state, for general information, that according to present arrangements, their Royal Highnesses will arrive at Victoria on the 2nd October next, at 11 a. m., and will leave at 1 p. m. on the 3rd idem.
His Excellency the Governor-General regrets the necessity of cutting short the Royal visit to Victoria, but the enormous extent of ground which their Royal Highnesses have to cross in a comparatively short space of time (five weeks) renders this, however, imperative, and it has been found necessary to act similarly with other large cities and towns, such as Winnipeg, Vancouver, Hamilton, Kingston, St. John, etc.

This being so, His Excellency would suggest that the programme for Victoria be remodelled on something like the following lines:

October 2.
11 a. m.—Arrive Victoria; Royal procession to city hall; presentation of addresses and medals to members of Canadian contingents, South Africa; Royal procession to Oak Bay hotel.

4 p. m.—Opening of agricultural exhibition.

Evening.
Official dinner at His Honor's the Lieut. Governor's residence.

10 p. m.—Reception at parliament buildings; illumination of city and fire works.

October 3.
10 a. m.—Lay corner stones of James Bay causeway and Point Ellice bridge.

His Honor considers the programme, as suggested by Lord Minto, a suitable one, and hopes that it will meet with the approval of the people.

As regards the items omitted in the programme proposed by the citizens' committee, the military authorities have only made provision for three reviews, viz., at Quebec, Toronto and Halifax, whilst want of time would render a review of children impossible. His Excellency suggests that possibly the latter might be concentrated at some point in the route which their Royal Highnesses would drive along, so that they might see them as they passed.

With reference to the dress to be worn at the reception, the Governor-General considers that it should be strictly full dress, that is to say uniform or court dress for those who have it, and evening dress for others.

As regards the proposal to decorate public buildings, there is no necessity to adhere to any particular colors, although purple and crimson, being the royal colors, are obviously a suitable combination.

Your obedient servant,
R. B. POWELL,
Provincial Secretary.

The following instructions with reference to the visit of their Royal Highnesses have been received.

Monday.—During the forthcoming visit of their Royal Highnesses the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York to Canada, due mourning should be worn by ladies according to Queen Alexandra's order, i.e., mauve, lilac, grey or black and white.

Address.—Addresses for presentation to His Royal Highness the Duke of Cornwall and York should be commenced as follows: "To His Royal Highness George Frederick Ernest Albert, Duke of Cornwall and York, Duke of Rothesay, Prince of Saxony and Elector of Hanover, and Duke of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha, and Duke of Glasgow, Earl of Carrick and Inverness, Baron of Redford and Killarney, Lord of the Isles and Great Steward of Scotland, K. G."

P. C. K. T. K. P. G. C. M. U. G. C. V. O. L. L. D. D. C. L., etc., etc.

"May it please Your Royal Highness."
If desired reference may be made to Her Royal Highness the Duchess of Cornwall and York in the body of the address.

J. POPE,
Under Secretary of State,
Department of the Secretary of State,
Ottawa, 10th July, 1901.

HAWAIIAN AFFAIRS.

Arrival From Honolulu Tells of the Present Situation.

Capt. Walker, of Honolulu, who arrived from the south a few days ago on the steamer Moana, reports rather exciting times. When interviewed this morning he said the Hawaiian islands are now undergoing a period of transition. The population is being augmented by negroes, Italians, Japanese, etc. Governor Dole, he said, was at present ill and was away recuperating. Times were prosperous and money seemed to be plentiful, but the prices for everything were enormous.

In regard to this year's sugar crop the captain stated that according to authentic estimates there would be 400,000 tons of sugar. The dividends, he expected, would reach 80 per cent, as formerly.

The labor question is a very serious one at present in the islands. This he ascribed to the abolition of the contract labor system. A Jap was now being paid as much as $1 to $1.25 a day, whereas formerly he only received $15 a month. Great excitement was caused by the actions of two judges who were appointed by President McKinley, who liberated prisoners convicted under the code providing that only two-thirds of the jury had to be unanimous in a case. The prisoners, however, were promptly re-arrested by the sheriff.

Capt. Walker states that what is wanted is telegraphic connection with the outside country. A cable was greatly needed at Honolulu. Capt. Walker is at the Victoria hotel.

At the age of twenty-five a man should have acquired his maximum height, varying normally from 5 feet 6 inches to 6 feet. His weight should slowly increase throughout the adult period, being at thirty, little less than the maximum which should be reached at forty. The weight is very variable between normal limits, but the average among men of medium height twenty-five years old may be placed at about 140 pounds.

There are many interesting departments in the Bank of England, and one that is devoted to printing. There every day some 60,000 Bank of England notes of varying value, from the comparatively humble but popular "five" to the rare and majestic "1,000," are printed off on the bank's machines, to say nothing of many, many thousands of postal orders, etc. Each machine prints the latter, each turning out 1,200 notes or orders, and the paper is of such size that ten postal orders are on each sheet.

A Pullman Palace Car Man

GRAPE-NUTS.

(See Below.)

"In the morning, when you don't have very much of an appetite, just fill your coffee cup about one-third full of Grape-Nuts, then fill up with hot coffee, sweeten to taste, stir well and let settle. Now try your coffee. Why, man, it will make your hair curl. After drinking your coffee, add a little more sugar and eat your Grape-Nuts with a spoon, and my word for it you will feel like a fighting cock, until dinner time. If you never have, and want something good, try it once."

The above is from a Pullman Palace Car man who starts out by saying that "Grape-Nuts are fine with cream, but let me tell you what to do when the old cow goes dry." We would further suggest that persons who have trouble in digesting coffee, use Postum Food Coffee for the morning meal and try the Grape-Nuts with it instead of with ordinary coffee.

Both Grape-Nuts and Postum contain certain elements that are of great value in rebuilding the human body.

The Binding Of Books

Provincial Government Plant Up-to-Date, Complete and Entirely Adequate.

An Excellent System Enables the Establishment to Turn Out Creditable Work

Doubtless few people in turning over the leaves of a year book or some ornate departmental report ever associate with its production the important task which is allotted to the bindery. The fact that the printing is but one phase of the work is seldom considered, but those thoroughly initiated into the mysteries of book production can appreciate the essential part played by the binding establishment.

It has been said and reiterated by visitors qualified to judge that the work turned out by the government printing office is unsurpassed throughout the length and breadth of the Dominion. This is a tribute to the excellence of the printing department, while it embodies a distinct compliment to those responsible for the binding of the publications on which this enthusiasm is based.

The binding facilities in connection with the provincial government printing department are almost exceptional. They are modern, entirely adequate and capable of covering an amount of work bewildering to the uninitiated. It is here that a perfect system is brought into play. From the printing apartment, in the basement the printed matter ascends to the binding room on the second floor, and when it emerges it is completed work.

The press room holds considerable fascination for the observer. The production on sheets or rolls of blank paper reading matter is more or less wonderful, but it is not a whit more interesting than the process which binds masses of printed matter into a comprehensive compact volume, gives it an attractive appearance and places it on display for the edification of its readers.

The bindery in the legislative building is in charge of Paul R. Smith, who is certainly well qualified for his position. He has under him altogether about nine hands, a couple of whom are engaged in the basement in tasks preliminary to the work of binding. It is in the binding room proper where the interest centres. There every one is busy, especially at this season of the year, when all hands are often employed over time.

Some idea of the extent of the work now on hand may be obtained when the following figures are taken into consideration: 1,200 volumes of the statutes of 500 pages each; 300 journals of 300 pages each; 300 volumes of sessional papers of 1,200 pages each; 300 copies of the "mices" report of 300 pages; and 4,500 Year Books of 500 pages. The total number of volumes now being bound is 6,000, representing 3,420,000 pages. Besides there are a number of treasury department blank books, huge journals in which are entered the transactions coming within the daily experience of government statisticians and accountants.

It is interesting to note that the government bindery has the capacity for turning out a class of work for which there is no demand outside legislative circles. This is the superior binding, such as in levant, Morocco and colored calf, placed on important works. It often occurs that frequent use and in some instances acts of vandalism render the re-covering of valuable books of the legislative library necessary, and in these instances the best material is used. Plants are now on route from the old country for gliding and marbling, and these together with the present plant will give the government bindery one of the best equipments in the country.

Without system in a bindery it would be impossible to cope with the exigencies of demand. In fact as far as a private establishment is concerned it would be impossible to run it profitably without system. It is that which enables those engaged to handle several classes of work at the same time and to continue to produce completed work while advancing the unfinished toward completion.

The first stage in the binding of a book as exemplified in the government bindery occurs in folding after the matter has been run off the press. The pages

ANNEXATIONIST'S MISTAKE. The newspapers of the great eastern centres in the United States continue to devote considerable space to this discussion of the prospects of securing improved relations with Canada.

Probably the portion of humanity which is so fortunate as to have nothing more to do with newspapers than to read them knows not the fact that there is one force in an office even more objectionable than the proofreader who has a mania for correcting "obvious grammatical and other errors."

When this has been completed he will proceed to several cities in the United States, who are negotiating for the purchase of a number of the tenders. The Jail Investigation

Chief Trusty Gives His Evidence Before Commission at New Westminster.

Keeps Prison Books and Writes Letters to Attorney-General's Department.

Continuing his evidence at the New Westminster jail inquiry on Wednesday afternoon, Guard Marshall said:

There was no record made of May Evans's absence. He believed she was sentenced to three months for it by Judge Bole. Prisoners often bought groceries. The matron did not keep a record, as far as he knew, of personal property of female prisoners. Could not explain certain items struck out from Eliza Brown's record, in a trusty's writing. The trusties were trusted to make such entries sometimes. The judge here pointed out that the evidence of the books was not reliable, as clearly shown by the witness.

There is no record to show the names or periods or hours on which trusties were on. Referring to Tompkins, alias Dalkin, witness said the memo "reprimanded" was put in the book a month after the fight occurred, in which he was concerned. Witness was vexed that no attention was paid to his complaint, and some time after looking in the records in the books, "column" was blank. Guard O'Connor was to have also complained, but somehow did not.

About the gin, witness opened the door to let Falding get a night-shirt. He carried this out folded, besides a valise. Falding was a trusty. He got drunk on the gin. He was not reported. He got credit for good conduct, and was let out, in fact, before his time was up, being pardoned out by the Dominion government. Trusties frequently made records in the books, noting that prisoners were allowed good conduct time, etc. There is no record of the "daily conduct" of prisoners, except as in the punishment book.

He conversed with Carnalita through the door of the women's ward. Webber kept a box with a lock in the women's bath-room, and he has a key on him at his cell.

Commissioner adjourned to examine these boxes and they contained a skeleton key which opened the women's ward. Had never seen it until now. He did not know until now. The woman, Mrs. Brown, was in the ward when the Chinaman told witness he had seen her visited by one of the prisoners. He could have questioned her then, through the matron, but did not. He reported the matter to the warden a couple of days after he was told of the event had occurred some time before. The woman may have spoken to the condemned Chinaman in passing, but witness had not seen her do so.

About letters, witness said it was not thought so much of, a letter coming to a prisoner from his wife. He gave Webber one which came to his (witness) post office address. Warden Armstrong, being asked, told the commissioner Webber had received several letters through the warden from his wife.

Guard Marshall, resuming, said he did not know if the warden knew of this letter. The warden had permitted him to post letters from prisoners. Louise Mascotte told witness she had a note from Rosy, asking her to send up half a gallon of liquor. He understood she sent up the liquor in syrup cans. He did not know if she had rendered an itemized bill for the $125 she claimed Rosy owed her. She said she sent up the liquor by an Indian, in the presence of Mrs. Robson. Louise got wroth after Miss Armstrong was in the office with a collarette on. She claimed the collarette was hers. He heard Rosy asking a fuss about it, and McKinnon afterward told him more about it. He saw the collarette, but would not know it again. She said she had given it to the matron. He did not remember Malcolm being put on bread and water. The commissioner met on Wednesday morning, when the examination of Guard Marshall was resumed.

Witness said he carried his keys with him when he went out to search for May Evans. He locked the outside door but the gate was open. He was not sure the matron was there. The two trusties "swear" in the office. He returned with the warden and opened the front door. Witness had the only key for that door. When he left again to look for the women he looked the door again and took his keys. The warden had gone, was not in the building, but the matron had returned from her meeting. He conversed with Yip Luck who never had occasion to take an hour in relieving the death watch. He relieved these several times. He had the warden's authority to do this. He was also watching the office, where the head trusty was. Had anything happened although he would have been obliged to put all the trusties in the jail before he could go to investigate. Otherwise at night he never shut the iron gate to the inside of the jail. The broken glass he had produced was taken from the prisoner Donald Perier, who was hanged. Perier told him he had tried to open his veins with it. He did not know where the Indian woman was while he was teaching the condemned Chinaman the Lord's Prayer. The cooks and trusties gave her her food. They conversed with her while doing so. Her breakfast would be about 7 a.m. He watched the trusties while with the woman, watched the Chinaman and watched the jail, all at the same time for that hour. He did not believe the Chinaman when he told him a prisoner had gone in to the Indian woman. To Mr. Huxley—Cannot say how many prisoners are ironed. All "hard labor" prisoners should be ironed. The iron was examined every morning by Guard Barr when the gang goes out but none are not examined at noon or night, when the gang returns. Witness admits them; the guards going home, or to the kitchen, or to the wash-house, at night. He was the only guard among them then. They could easily overpower him and escape.

To the Commissioner—A trusty made the entry crediting May Evans with three months' good conduct time. Witness said the warden and head trusty made up the prisoners' time. The sheets showing the cists for the month are put in the waste paper basket. All prisoners are released at 10 a.m. Could be sure he was on duty when the Chinaman was in the ward, but he does not remember if he had discharged any prisoner.

To Mr. Dockrill—There had been no change in the system of receiving the chain-gang since his time. While he had not locked the ward gate but there were other doors he could lock. Rosy took a screen when he left, but witness did not see it. He heard Webber volunteering to make a screen for Miss Armstrong. The latter condemned the work, and he gave it to O'Connor. He knew Rosy took a screen away. He had bought one for 40 cents.

Edwin L. Douglas Webber was then examined. He had been chief trusty since January 10th, 1901. His duties included the bookkeeping, did the bathing and looked after things generally in the wing. He had a key to the women's bath-room, and he had a key to the women's ward. He had a key to the women's bath-room, and he had a key to the women's ward.

At present, Amigo Dupuy, for four months; Westall, for two months; Murray, for three or four days. Amigo sweeps out the cells. Dupuy led the bath room work when witness was at the books, or out cutting the lawn. The others did odd jobs, carried coal, etc. As bookkeeper, witness did some or showed witness what to do. Witness did some typewriting including the reports to the Attorney-General's department. McKinnon was a general trusty for him. One of the books had been neglected from August, 1899, and the warden told him to write it up to date. This he commenced to do in March last. Working back he got as far as September. He got the information from the punishment book and the minute book.

The figure 3 signifies "good time." A prisoner may be punished and not lose his good time. He would be punished for his misbehavior, but would not lose his good time. During his term the "conduct" book has not been kept written up. All others have been kept up. There is an order book in the women's ward. He never went for any stores alone to the latter place. The "employment book" is also not made up. The chain-gang guard, Barr, has not yet entered it in the diary, so witness could not write it up. Witness gave instructions to the trusties. He had nothing to do regarding the selection of the trusties. He was not consulted. He made fires in the office sometimes, but not in the women's ward. He carried coal there in the mornings about 8 o'clock, when the matron went in. In the evening the matron went in at 6 or 7 and 9 o'clock. He swept condemned Chinaman's cell. He understood Rosy was there in the hospital. May was gone. A half-breed girl, Alice Brown, was in the second cell, on the lowest flat of the women's ward, while the condemned cell was occupied. She was locked up all the time. He never looked in her cell to see. He had taken her a drink of water twice. He cleaned up the bath-room. He never saw any one cleaning up there, but he only swept out there three days. Guard Marshall told him a man had got into Alice Brown's cell. The matron had sent the woman to McKinnon sent the witness in to sweep. The guard was watching witness as well as the Chinaman. McKinnon told him one day the women's cell door had been open, and he had been down there. He told him that in the men's bath-room. He heard through guard Marshall the girl was unwell. Only saw May Evans twice; he did not speak to her. She did not do anything to attract his attention. The warden went for trial, October 9th, he was taking his lunch in the bath-room. Rosy and May were moving to the hospital, and he saw them, but did not speak to them. He knew Dupuy as a fellow telegraph operator, but did not know him personally before he came into the jail. Since July 11th they have occupied the same cell. They had to double up.

"STARVING RUSSIA."

In a sombre book which has very recently appeared in Germany, under the title of "Starving Russia," written in collaboration by Dr. Lehmann, a German physician and M. Parvus, a Russian economist, it is maintained that the annual budget has only been balanced by the startling device of taking the necessary sums out of the capital resources. The argument is that from January 1st, 1897, to January 1st, 1899, Russia raised her debt from 4,337,000,000 to 6,103,000,000 rubles. The increase, therefore, was 1,766,000,000 rubles. But it is claimed that in the same period only 1,224,000,000 rubles were expended upon railways and productive development. The inference is that a total of 5,879,000,000 rubles has been used to cover successive deficits.

To Mr. Huxley—Cannot say how many prisoners are ironed. All "hard labor" prisoners should be ironed. The iron was examined every morning by Guard Barr when the gang goes out but none are not examined at noon or night, when the gang returns. CHESLEY CASE COMES UP AGAIN.

John Fletcher, a Farmer, Cured of Lumbago by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

One of the Thousand Similar Cases in Ontario—A Common Trouble Among Farmers—Dodd's Kidney Pills Invariably Cure It.

Chesley, Ont., Aug. 9.—Harvesting is in full swing and the farmers of the section are hard at it early and late. For two steady months they will be working harder than any other class of men in the country.

Probably no period of the year so trying on the farmer as the harvest season. The management of a farm, never a light task, becomes truly heavy. Worries increase. The actual manual labor from dawn to dark and sometimes later, is as hard as a man can stand. It is not surprising that farmers often break down after the threshing is over. "Plum tuckered out," the system is apt to be in a low, weakened condition which is easily thrown out of order. The kidneys will show the sign of it first. Backache will probably be the first sign of the Kidney trouble, accompanied by a brick dust sediment in the urine. From this stage it is a short step to Lumbago, which is chronic Backache.

Dr. Koch's New Theory

Important Parts of Recent Speech Before British Congress on Tuberculosis.

He Tells of Some Experiments—Animals Fed With Different Bacilli

The New York Journal publishes the full text of the address of Dr. Koch, before the British Congress on Tuberculosis. The following extracts cover the subject of his new theory:

The real cause of the disease was a parasite, visible and palpable entity which we could pursue and annihilate. Strictly speaking, the fact that tuberculosis was a preventable disease ought to have become clear as soon as the tubercle bacillus was discovered and the properties of this parasite and manner of its transmission became known. In by far the majority of cases tuberculosis had its seat in the lungs, and had also begun there. As to the question of where the inhaled tubercle bacilli had come from there was also no doubt. On the contrary, we know with certainty they got into the air from the sputum of consumptive patients, which almost always contained tubercle bacilli, sometimes in incredible quantities. By coughing and even sneezing it was being blown into the air in little drops, i.e., in moist condition and could at once infect persons who happened to be near the coughers, but then it might also be pulverized, when dried in linen or on the surface of dust, and get into the air in the form of dust, which, in virtue of its smallness, could be floating a good while in the air, and finally to new infection.

Little Hereditary. The sputum of consumptive people, then, was to be regarded as the main source of the infection of tuberculosis. It has been demonstrated by thorough experiments that tubercle bacilli, when dried, were not absolutely non-existent but were nevertheless extremely rare. Another possibility of tubercle infection had led him to form an opinion deviating from that which was generally accepted. He begged their permission, in consideration of the great importance of this question, to present a little more thoroughly. Genuine tuberculosis had hitherto been observed in almost all domestic animals, and most frequently in poultry and cattle.

Small Animals Unsatisfactory. Tuberculosis of poultry differed so much from human tuberculosis that we might leave it out of account. Strictly speaking, the only kind of animal tuberculosis remaining to be considered was that of cattle, which, if really transferred to man, would indeed have frequent opportunities of infecting human beings.

Even in his first publication on tuberculosis he expressed himself regarding the identity of human tuberculosis and bovine tuberculosis with reserve. Proving facts which would have enabled him sharply to distinguish between these two forms, were not then at his disposal, but sure proofs of their absolute identity were equally undiscoverable. In order to decide it he had repeatedly resumed investigations relating to it, but so long as he experimented on small animals such as rabbits and guinea pigs he failed to arrive at any satisfactory result, though indications which rendered the difference of the two forms of tuberculosis probable were not wanting. Not until the compliance of the ministry of agriculture enabled him to experiment on cattle, the only animals really suitable for the investigation, did he arrive at absolutely conclusive results. These experiments he had carried out during the last two years, along with Professor Schultz of the Veterinary College of Berlin.

His Recent Experiments. He would tell them briefly some of the most important. A number of young cattle which had stood the tuberculin test, and might, therefore, be regarded as free from tuberculosis, were infected in various ways with pure cultures of tubercle bacilli taken from cases of human tuberculosis. Some of them got tubercular sputum of consumptive patients direct. In some cases tubercle bacilli or sputum were injected under the skin, in others into the peritoneal cavity, in others in the jugular vein. Six animals were fed with tubercular sputum almost daily for seven or eight months. Four repeatedly inhaled great quantities of bacilli which were distributed in water and spattered with it in the form of spray. None of these cattle, and there were nineteen of them, showed any symptoms of the disease and they gained considerable in weight.

From six to eight months after the beginning of the experiments they were killed, and in their internal organs not a trace of tuberculosis was found.

The result was utterly different, however, when the same experiment was made on cattle free from tuberculosis with tubercle bacilli that came from the lungs of animals suffering from bovine tuberculosis. After the incubation period of about a week, the several tubercular disorders of the internal organs broke out in all the infected animals. After death extensive tubercular infiltrations were found at the places where injections had been made, and in neighboring lymphatic glands, and also advanced alterations of the internal organs, especially the lungs and spleen. The difference between human and bovine tuberculosis appeared not less strikingly in similar experiments with asses, sheep and goats, into whose vascular systems the tubercle bacilli were injected. These experiments were not the only ones that have led to this result.

Evidence From Older Literature. If one studies older literature on the subject and collated reports of numerous experiments made at various times by Chauveau, Gunther and Harms, Rolinger and others, who fed calves, swine and goats with tubercular material, one finds animals that were fed with milk, and pieces of lungs of tubercular cattle always fell ill of tuberculosis, whereas those which received human material with their food did not. Considering all the facts, he felt justified in maintaining that human tuberculosis differed from bovine, and could not be transmitted to cattle.

Now, how was it, with the susceptibility of man to bovine tuberculosis? Highly important as this question was, he was unable to give a direct answer because experimental investigation of it with human beings was out of the question. Indirectly, however, he could give an approximate answer. It is well known that milk and butter containing large quantities of the bacilli of bovine tuberculosis in living condition, as numerous infectious experiments with such dairy products on animals had proved.

Virulent Bacilli Consumed. Most of the inhabitants of such cities consumed such living and perfectly virulent bacilli of bovine tuberculosis and unintentionally carried out the experiment of infection. It was not so, that a case of tuberculosis had been caused by aliment that could be assumed with certainty only when the intestines suffered first, i.e., when so-called primary tuberculosis of the intestines was found, but such cases were extremely rare. Among the many cases of tuberculosis examined after death he himself remembered having seen primary tuberculosis of the intestines only twice among the great post-mortem material of the Charite hospital in Berlin.

Ten Cases of Alimentary Infection. Ten cases of primary tuberculosis of the intestines occurred in five years among 933 cases of tuberculosis in children at Emperor and Empress Frederick's Hospital for Children. Maginsky never found tuberculosis of the intestines without simultaneous affection of the lungs and bronchial glands. Among 3,104 post-mortem examinations of tubercular children, Biedert observed only sixteen cases of primary tuberculosis of intestine. He could cite from statistics of the same kind, all indubitably showing that primary tuberculosis of the intestine, especially among children, was a comparatively rare disease, and of these few cases that had been enumerated it was by no means certain they were due to infection by bovine tuberculosis. It was just as likely that they were caused by widely propagated bacilli of human tuberculosis which might have got into the digestive canal in some way or other—for instance, by swallowing saliva. Hitherto he had decided with certainty in such cases whether tuberculosis of the intestine was of human or of animal origin. Now, however, we could diagnose it. All that was necessary was to cultivate in pure material tubercle bacilli found in tubercular material and to ascertain whether they belonged to bovine tuberculosis by inoculating cattle with them. For this purpose he recommended a subcutaneous injection which yielded quick, especially characteristic and convincing results. For half a year past he had occupied himself with such investigations, but owing to the rareness of the disease in question the number of cases he had been able to investigate was very small.

Guarantee Unnecessary. What had hitherto resulted from this investigation did not speak for the assumption that bovine tuberculosis occurred in man, though the important

Hongkong Competition

North German Lloyd and P. & O. Steamers Strongest Rivals of Empresses.

The Utopia Has Passed Into New Ownership—Idzumi Maru From the Orient.

When the new steamship for the Empire line, the leaders for the construction of which are reported to have just been called, is complete and ready for service, the C. P. R. Company will be enabled to effect still better connections with the Orient than have been possible up till the present.

The fact that the Hongkong liners render the strongest opposition which the C. P. R. Company has to-day in the Orient, is little thought of in connection with the Oriental business.

THE UTOPIA SOLD.

For a cash consideration of $30,000 the well known steamer Utopia, which has long been plying on the Seattle-Victoria run, yesterday passed to the ownership of the Le Conte Trading & Transportation Company.

Since her construction in 1893 at Ballard the Utopia has been on various "fast" runs, always operated from Seattle, and during the great Klondike rush of 1897-98 she made a number of voyages to Lynn Canal.

The purchase of the Utopia gives the Le Conte Trading & Transportation Company a fleet of eight vessels, namely, the Island Flyer, Utopia, E. D. Smith, George E. Starr, Fairhaven City of Denver, T. W. Lake and Rapid Transit.

be added when the steamer reaches the Terminal City to-day 70 head of cattle. Among the passengers leaving on the steamer were Capt. John Irving, who is bound for Taku Arm to inspect his ore properties there; ten artists going to Dawson to perform in the music halls of Jackson & Company; J. S. Rollins, N. K. Wilson, Mrs. Roberts, W. W. Walthers, Mrs. F. C. Douglas, Mr. Wynne, Mrs. Marks and daughter and D. Cadzow.

MARINE NOTES.

Preparations are being made to place the schooner South Bend into the halibut fishing industry this winter. She will be the first of the sealing fleet to enter the service, and if the venture proves successful the probabilities are that several of the idle vessels now in the upper harbor will ere long find similar employment.

The Idzumi Maru, of the Nippon Yusen Kaisha line, was reported passing Carmichael Point inward bound from the Orient at 10:30 o'clock. She will reach the outer wharf, it is expected, between 8 and 9 this evening.

The lay-over day of the steamer Rosalie on the Sound route will be Saturday, this arrangement having been made in order that Victoria may have a continuous service to Seattle, the lay-over day of the opposition steamer Majestic being Sunday.

The steamer North Pacific is being overhauled at Tacoma and during the carnival there will be run between Seattle, Tacoma and Everett in connection with the Flyer.

The American ship St. Francis has completed her lumber cargo at Chemainus, and will sail for Adelaide in a few days.

BACK FROM GLASGOW.

George Webb Tells of the Visit He Paid to the Exhibition—Canada Well Represented.

After an absence of about three months George Webb, well known in Victoria, returned yesterday from the Old Country, where he has been visiting the Glasgow exhibition.

Mr. Webb visited the exhibition held at the same place in the year 1888, and states that the present fair by far surpasses the former one. A feature of the exhibition was the exhibits of the colonies. They are better represented than at any exhibition yet held in Europe, and as a result the eyes of the Old Country people are being opened to the immense resources of the Empire.

In exhibits of the colonies, Canada's, according to Mr. Webb, are the most noticeable. The building which represents Canada is situated along with those of Russia and France. It is a very large structure, and on entering one is struck, said Mr. Webb, with the beautiful interior architecture.

The interior is very tastefully decorated with various products. The display of fruits, especially of apples, was what impressed Mr. Webb perhaps more than anything else. The apples are arranged in plates on tables and represent every variety grown in the Dominion.

Great credit, said Mr. Webb, is due to the management of the Canadian branch of the exhibition, as it was undoubtedly a great success.

A Native Indian Colony

(NO. VI.) It is stated that the savage is attracted to advancement by those things which appeal to his senses. Generally speaking, the first step towards teaching a savage is to feed him; the stomach satisfied, he will listen to the instructor, not before. Mr. Duncan grasped and grasped intelligently, the true science of civilization—he learned the insistent needs, and plant capacities of the savages. We have seen how effectively he provided for these needs, and trained these capacities. His plan of management continued eminently successful, year after year, until the autumn of 1881, when a storm gathered in a quarter altogether unlooked for, and threatened the settlement with destruction. It appears that Mr. Duncan left England as a missionary layman, and he continues to be so. He is not yet ten years since he took the Church of England orders—being the title of Bishop was open to him—but his labors being so richly blessed as a layman, he refused to change his degree. His answer to the Bishop of Columbia, who urged him, was that he feared that church orders would prove to him what Saul's armor was to David; only an encumbrance, and therefore, he preferred keeping to the use of the sling and stone.

The results of Mr. Duncan's mission, under the system which he had pursued and proposed to continue to pursue, had proved so successful, that he could not prevail on himself to change the mode of procedure. So far, he had tested every step he had taken, and had provided for expected difficulties which might approach. The Mission was considered a marvel, and the Indian settlement was known far and wide. It was visited by many travellers from distant countries, and favorable notices appeared in the press of Great Britain and the United States. In 1885, Matthew Maec, E. R. G. S., in a London publication, when commenting upon the utter degradation in which he found the British Columbia Indians, wrote: "From these facts readily given, some idea may be formed of the 'restoration' borne by Mr. Duncan at the beginning of his career. But a noble ambition to elevate the social and religious condition of the Indian lightened the burden of his toils. Such an enterprise was sufficiently onerous to one cheered by the presence of a Christian sympathy; but in his isolated situation, struggling without a pious companion or either sex to share his anxieties and labors, was fitted to deepen the interest felt by the religious public at home. A work has been accomplished there, where success has rarely if ever been equalled in the history of missions to the heathen."

The distinguished English traveller, Wymper, who made an extended journey through the country north of the Pacific Ocean, published a book in London, "Travels in Alaska, 1888," in which he says, referring to Metlakahla: "The success of this station is, doubtless, due in part to its isolation from any large white settlement, but Mr. Duncan must have labored earnestly and incessantly in his work." Admiral Mayne, who devoted nearly five years to exploration and the study of the natives of the islands of the North Pacific and Mainland, in his report says: "There is no doubt that men of Mr. Duncan's stamp, who will in a frank, manly spirit go among them (the Indians), diffusing the blessings of religion and education, will meet a cordial reception and an abundant reward. But without any desire to disparage or diminish others, I must say that Mr. Duncan impressed us as a man out of ten thousand, possessing with abundant energy and zeal that talent for acquiring the confidence and love of his fellow creature, which all who come in his way, were they whites or Indians, could not fail to acknowledge and feel subject to." Dr. Halmoth, of the Cambridge, England, published a book under the direction of the Tract committee (Stranger than Fiction), which passed through several editions, says: "Humanly speaking, a great part of Mr. Duncan's success, especially at first, was due to the persistence with which he went, those who would not come to him, and to his resolute determination to declare to all 'whether they would hear or whether they would forbear,' the counsel and will of God regarding them, there can be no doubt. Gradually assuming shape and consistency, until it finally resulted in the establishment of a settlement, the singular and successful development of which has already constituted it one of the marvels of the day."

"That a man possessed of such singular administrative abilities, such great earnestness, and such unusual power of influencing others, and who has gained such mastery of the language as to 'think and dream' in it, should entirely withdraw himself from the work to which he has hitherto devoted himself, would be a cause of general and deep regret, and we may well express the hope that the day for his doing so may yet be far distant. Great as has been the work which has already been done, a greater still remains to be accomplished. If Metlakahla is really to become the centre of any widely extended efforts to evangelize the native tribes of Northwest America, it must be under the guiding and controlling influence of such a mind as Mr. Duncan. Most sincerely do we trust that he will meet with such encouragement and assistance as will enable him to complete that which he has begun so well, and that the Christian community which we have seen so successfully organized may only be the first of many other settlements, modelled on the same plan and showing the same successful prosperity, combined with a thorough appreciation and practical application of the saving truths of Christianity."

"Yielding to no consideration of comfort, taste, interest, reputation or safety (in all which respects he has been severely tried), did Mr. Duncan labor on, year after year, resolutely sacrificing himself and his own interests to the work which he had undertaken, and refusing to decline or abandon any undertaking which he believed to be, under the providence of God, essential to its success. Who, that reads the story of what the saint, will-and-entire-self-devotion-of one man has effected, will deny that it is indeed 'stranger than fiction'?" In its treatise on missions, the Encyclopædia Britannica says: "At British Columbia, on the coast of the Pacific, a practical missionary genius, named will thus have shown to what the Indian race can attain, at the same time that you will leave to your children an ever-widening prospect of increasing happiness and progressive improvement. "Before I conclude, I cannot help expressing to Mr. Duncan and those associated with him in his good work, not only in my own name, but not only in the name of the government of Canada, but also in the name of Her Majesty the Queen, and in the name of the people of England, who take so deep an interest in the well-being of all the native races throughout the Queen's dominions, our deep gratitude to him for thus having devoted the flower of his life, in spite of innumerable difficulties, dangers and discouragements, of which we only see the result of his labors, can form only a very inadequate idea of a work which has resulted in the beautiful scene we have witnessed this morning. "I only wish to add that I am very much obliged to you for the satisfactory and loyal address with which you have greeted me. The very fact of your being in a position to express yourselves with so much propriety, and although it has been my good fortune to receive many addresses during my stay in Canada from various communities of your fellow-objects, not one of them will be surrounded by so many hopeful and pleasant reminiscences as those which I shall carry away with me from this happy occasion. "On Lord Dufferin's return to Victoria, he addressed, at the Government House, about two hundred leading citizens, including the members of the provincial government, and amongst other things said: "I have traversed the entire coast of British Columbia from its southern extremity to Alaska. I have penetrated to the head of Bute Inlet, I have examined the Seymour Narrows, and the other channels which intervene between the head of Bute Inlet and Vancouver Island. I have looked into the mouth of the Skeena to Dawson's Channel. I have visited Mr. Duncan's wonderful settlement at Metlakahla, and the interesting Methodist Mission at Fort Simpson, and have thus been enabled to realize what scenes of primitive peace and innocence, of idyllic beauty and material comfort can be presented by the stalwart men and comely maidens of a happy community under the wise administration of a judicious and devoted Christian missionary. I have seen the Indians in all the phases of their existence, from the half-naked savage, perched like a bird of prey, in a red blanket upon a rock trying to catch his miserable dinner of fish, to the neat maiden in Mr. Duncan's school at Metlakahla, as modest and as well-dressed as any clergyman's daughter in an English parish. . . . "What you want are not resources, but human beings to develop them and consume them. Raise your thirty thousand Indians to the level Mr. Duncan has taught us they can be brought, and consider what an enormous amount of vital power you will have added to your present strength."

"In a book named 'The Sea of Mountains,' Mr. St. John, who reported the addresses delivered by the Governor-General, writing of Mr. Duncan's plan of dealing with his people, inter alia, says: "It struck me that he threw, and successfully threw, cold water on the Governor-General's 'special' and 'special' mark of recognition on the chiefs. He has to conduct his operations in a peculiar way, and it can be easily shown to be understood that much of his advice and direction would be thrown away were there a recognized authority over the Indians other than himself. He strives to make merit and industry standards by which the men of the village are measured; and in presenting an address to the Governor-General, which was done immediately after the singing was concluded, there was no apparent priority or distinction among them, Lord and Lady Dufferin were greatly impressed by the address, and on the evening of the 22nd January, the substantial creation of a civilized community, from a people rescued in a single generation from the lowest degradation and savagery. Lady Dufferin noted the quiet colors and modest dresses of the women." W. F. Rainbird, in his book "Four of Christian Missions Around the World," New York, 1882, speaking of the Church of England Missions, writes: "Their most interesting station is at Metlakahla, near Fort Simpson, upon the Pacific Coast of British Columbia. When in 1857 Mr. Duncan was located among the Tshimshian, he was met by a hopeless as when the explorer Hudson was cast ashore by the icebergs. He found there many thousands of the most blood-thirsty savages. Physically a superior tribe, they yet seemed to have sunk lower than all others in wretchedness and crime. Soon after the 'fire-water' was introduced by the Victoria miners, and a reign of terror began. But the missionary first of this Christianity was equal to even such a situation of unparalleled horrors, and he kept to work. By 1862 he had influenced some fifty to a better life, and with them formed a new settlement a few miles distant. Now over a thousand are gathered there about him in well built cottages, with the largest church edifice north of San Francisco, the Sabbath kept, all the children at school, every citizen in health, attending divine worship. No intoxicating drink is allowed in the community. This prosperous, well-ordered, Christian settlement shows what evangelization can do under the most possible embarrassments."

Mr. N. H. Chittenden, in his work entitled "Travels Through British Columbia, 1882," writes: "Metlakahla, the field of the remarkably successful work of Mr. Duncan in civilizing and Christianizing the Tshimshian Indians. He first established a Mission at Fort Simpson, a post of the Hudson Bay Co., but for the purpose of greater isolation, in 1862, removed to Metlakahla, where he gathered about 1,000 of that tribe, and through firm government and faithful secular and religious training, raised them from barbarism to the condition of civilized people. They live in comfortable houses, dress like the whites, school their children, and worship in one of the largest churches in the province—erected at a cost of ten thousand ($10,000) dollars."

July McNair Wright, in her book devoted to the study of the natives of Alaska, writes: "William Duncan, of the Church of England, is another of these bright names. Forgetting ambition, despising ease, forsaking his own country and his father's house, counting even life not dear if he might win for these simple Indian souls for the Son of God, he has created a civilization in Metlakahla and brought many souls to glory. The longest established and most successful work among any Alaskan Indians is that maintained by Mr. Duncan. The Chilcats had occasionally visited Fort Simpson and Metlakahla, where one of the most remarkable of all missionary enterprises is located, and also Sitka and their friends wonderful tales of Indians 'become white,' who could 'talk on paper' and 'hear paper talk,' and who wore white folks' clothes, and lived in houses with windows, and forsook the Shaman, and ate no more dog-flesh and no longer killed one another." Alluding to the wretchedness of the Alaskan Indians in their native villages, he adds: "The houses of the Indians are not fitted for any decency of home life, nor for maintaining health. The houses are often without partitions, and are inhabited by many Indians together, of all ages and both sexes. There is no possibility of securing modesty of demeanor, purity of thought or cleanliness of living under these circumstances. Polygamy of the most shameless type exists, and child marriages are common. There is no need to expatiate on the moral degradation resulting from twenty, thirty or more persons living in one room; the results would be evident to any idiot." "Among the Alaskans,"—Philadelphia, 1883. Rev. Sheldon Jackson, United States General Agent for Education in Alaska, who has several times visited Metlakahla, and repeatedly borne emphatic testimony to the influence of Mr. Duncan's Christianizing and civilizing work among the Alaskan natives, and whose extensive experience in Mission and educational work among the Indians lends peculiar force to his opinions, says of Mr. Duncan's Mission: "The new settlement has now grown to one thousand people, forming the healthiest and strongest settlement on the coast. These Indians are happy, industrious, progressive, community of former savages and cannibals, saved by the grace of God. This is the oldest and most successful Mission on the coast (1880), and illustrates what one consecrated man can accomplish." A. B. "Note.—The church, school, fisher's house and other buildings were destroyed by a fire in Metlakahla on the 22nd July, 1901. The value of the church is given by Bishop Ridley at $15,000."

DEEP PLAY

The author of the book on gamblers and gambling mentions that when the first came into the world, in 1750, there was no such thing as a faro table admitted into the houses of people of rank and fashion; that in his childhood people had too much pride to receive tribute from the proprietor of such a machine, and that excessive gambling was not as a rule carried on in private houses, but at clubs, where the "play" was deeper than ever was before or since. One can scarcely imagine, however, devoted play sitting knee-deep in cards, and the "servant in attendance was fair to be down and motionless about Longman's Magazine.

Some Famous Orators

Senator Hoar's Paper on Gladstone, Rufus Choate and Edward Everett.

Interesting Anecdotes About Well Known Speakers—The G. O. M. and Disraeli.

Senator George F. Hoar contributes an interesting paper to the July number of Scribner's Magazine on "Some Famous Orators I Have Heard." On several occasions he listened to Gladstone debate in the House of Commons, and, contrasting his style of oratory with that of Disraeli, he says: "Gladstone showed in his speech the profounder reflection on the general subject, the more philosophy, and the intense earnestness; Disraeli showed quickness of wit, a ready command of his resources, ability for subtle distinction and glimpses of his almost satanic capacity for mockery and jeering."

In 1871 Senator Hoar heard Gladstone, when there was a great struggle between him and Disraeli over the Parliamentary and Municipal Elections Bill. "Gladstone was terribly in earnest. He began his speech by a compliment to Northcote, his opponent, for whom he had shown his esteem by sending him to the United States as one of the joint high commission to make the Alabama treaty. But when Mr. Gladstone was well under way, Sir Stafford interposed a dissent from something he said by calling out, 'No, no—a very frequent practice in the House. Gladstone turned upon him savagely, with a tone of anger which I might almost call furious: 'Can the gentleman tolerate no opinion but his own, that he interpose his subtle contradiction into the middle of my sentence? The House evidently did not like it. Hughes, who agreed with Gladstone, said to me: 'What a pity it is that he can not control his temper; that is his great fault.'"

Senator Hoar says Gladstone had a tendency to somewhat involved speech and at the same time a gift of compact epigrammatic utterance on occasions. The only American orator which he can recall who had his rare gift were Choate and Everett. He says: "When Mr. Everett, who was my near relative, and a man with whom I could take a liberty, came into the senate, I said to him that we should have to amend the rules so that a motion to adjourn would be in order in the middle of a sentence; to which he replied that he knew of nobody in this country who objected to such sentences except the criminal classes."

Senator Hoar heard Lyman Beecher, then a very old man, before a meeting of the members of the Massachusetts legislature in 1852, when the measure known as the "Maine Liquor Law" was pending. He bore unmistakable marks of advanced age. But there were one or two passages that showed the power of the orator, one especially in which he described the beauty and delight of our homes, and intemperance threatening them with its waves like a great sea of fire.

He saw Henry Ward Beecher several times in private, and had pleasant talks with him, but never heard him speak on any occasion when he put forth his power. "But if half that is told of his speeches, during the civil war, some of them to hostile and angry audiences, he true, he was a consummate master. One story is told of him which I suppose is true, and, if it be true, ranks him as one of the greatest masters of his art that ever lived. It is said that he was speaking to a great crowd in Birmingham, or perhaps Liverpool, which constantly goaded him with hostile interruptions, so that he had great difficulty in getting on. At last one fellow provoked the cheers and applause of the audience by crying out: 'Why didn't you put down the rebellion in sixty days as you said you would?' Beecher paused a moment until they became still, in their eagerness to hear his reply, and then he burst back: 'We should if they had been Englishmen.' The fierce, untamed animal hesitated a moment between anger and admiration, and then the English love of fair play and punch prevailed, and the crowd cheered him and let him go on."

Rufus Choate's method was pure persuasion: "He never appealed to base motives, nor tried to awake coarse prejudices or stormy passions. He indulged in no invective. His wit and sarcasm and ridicule amused the victim almost as much as it amused the bystanders. He had a voice without any craft or any shrill tones and he never strained it or seemed to exert it to its fullest capacity. Whether you liked him or disliked him you gave him your ears, erect and intent. He used manuscript a great deal, even in speaking to juries. When a trial was on, lasting days or weeks, he kept pen, ink and paper at hand in his bedroom, and would often get up in the middle of the night to write down thoughts that came to him as he lay in bed. He was always careful to keep warm. It was said he prepared for a great jury argument by taking off eight great coats and drinking eight cups of green tea."

Of his power of persuasion, Senator Hoar says: "It was a curious sight to see on a jury twelve hard-headed and intelligent countrymen—farmers, town officers, trustees, men chosen by their neighbors to transact their important affairs—after an argument by some clear-headed lawyer for the defence about some apparently not very doubtful transaction, who had brought them all to his way of thinking, and had warned them against the wiles of the charmer, when Choate rose to reply for the plaintiff—to see their hands of confidence and disdain—'you needn't try your wiles upon me.' The shoulder turned a little against the speaker—the averted eyes—and then the change—first, the changed posture of the body; the slight opening of the mouth; then the look, first of curiosity, and then of confidence and respect; the surrender of the eye to the eye of the great advocate, then the spell, the charm, the great enchantment—till at last, jury and audience were all swept away, and followed the conqueror captive in his triumphal march. He gesticulated with his whole body. Webster Phillips most irreverently said to a monkey in convulsions. His bowings down and straightening himself again were spoken of by another critic, not unfriendly, as opening and shutting like a jack-knife. His curly black hairs seemed each to have a separate life of its own. His eyes shone like coals of fire."

Edward Everett paid his tribute to Choate in Faneuil hall the week after the great advocate's death: "He is sometimes satisfied, in concise epigrammatic clauses, to skirmish with his light troops, and then to sweep the outposts. It is only on fitting occasions, when great principles are to be vindicated, and solemn truths told, when some moral or political Waterloo or Solferino is to be fought, that he puts on the entire panoply of his gorgeous rhetoric. It is then that his majestic sentences swell to the dimensions of his majestic thought; then it is that we hear afar off the awful roar of his rifled ordinance; and when he has stormed the heights and broken the centre, and trampled the squares, and turned the staggering wings of the adversary, that he sounds his imperial clarion along the whole line of battle, and moves forward with all his hosts in one overwhelming charge."

Edward Everett seems to Senator Hoar, on the whole, our best example of the orator, pure and simple: "Webster was a great statesman, a great lawyer, a great advocate, a great public teacher. To all these his matchless oratory was but an instrument and incident: Choate was a great winner of cases, and as re-creation he gave, in the brief vacation of an overworked professional life the once defined a lawyer's vacation as the time after he has put a question to a witness while he is waiting for an answer, a few wonderful literary and historical addresses. He gave a brief period of brilliant but most unwilling service in each House of Congress. He made some powerful political speeches to popular audiences. But his heart was always in the court house. No talker ever hankered for the feverish delight of the gambling table as Choate did for that absorbing game, half-chance, half-skill, where twelve human dice must all turn up together one way, or there is no victory. But Everett is always the orator. He was a Greek professor a little while. He was a college president a little while. He was minister to England a little while. He was representative in congress and senator. He was a governor of the commonwealth. In these places he did good service enough to make a high reputation for any other man. Little of these things is remembered."

Senator Hoar also considers him the foremost American orator in his class: "There is one function of the orator peculiar to our country, and almost wholly unknown elsewhere. That is the giving utterance to the emotion of the people, whether of joy or sorrow, on the occasions when the soul is deeply stirred—when some great man dies, or there is a great victory or defeat, or some notable anniversary is celebrated. This of was filled by other men on some few occasions by Daniel Webster himself, but no man better than by Everett. In sorrow, it must utter its cry of pain; in victory, its note of triumph. As events pass, it must pronounce its judgment. Its constant purpose must be fixed and made more steadfast by expression. It must give voice to its love and its approbation and its condemnation. It must register the high and low water mark of its tide, its rising and its sinking in heat and cold. This office Edward Everett, for nearly fifty years, performer for Massachusetts and for the whole country. In his orations are preserved and recorded everything of the emotion of the great hours of our people's history. The camera of his delicate photography has preserved for future generations what passed in the soul of his own in the times that tried the souls of men."

If one would really appreciate the beauty of Everett's style, Senator Hoar makes this suggestion: "Read the welcome to Lafayette in the close of the matchless oration on that illustrious object of the soul of his own in the times that tried the souls of men."

BECAME ALARMED.

Dundas Farmer Pulled Up in Time to Save His Life.

Donald George Ross, a farmer, near Dundas, was travelling down the road that leads to misery and death. For three years he had been on that road, slowly but surely making his way to the certain goal.

Donald Ross had Dyspepsia. For three years his head had ached and his nerves had been racked, because his stomach was weak and could not digest his food. And the less nourishment he got from his food the weaker his stomach as well as the rest of his body became, because the stomach receives its strength from the food we eat like every other organ and member.

However Mr. Ross did not finish his journey on that road. He pulled up in time. He cured his Dyspepsia. Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets were the means of actually saving his life, for Mr. Ross himself says nothing else would have cured him. Perhaps his own letter will state the case better than anything else.

"For about three years," he writes, "I have been troubled with Headaches and Nervousness caused by Dyspepsia. I could not get any relief. Doctors told me I had a very bad case and that I would never get cured. I became alarmed and consulted one of the best doctors in Hamilton, but no use. I could not get help. Then I heard about Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets. I tried them, and they gave me a complete cure. I can highly recommend Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets to any one troubled as I was."

If you have Dyspepsia try Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets. They are only fifty cents a box. They will surely help you.

HOW WALES IS DIVIDED.

Of Wales it may be said, as Caesar said to Gaul, that it is divided into three parts—English Wales, Welsh Wales and Little England beyond Wales, or Pembroke-shire. In the first the language spoken is chiefly English, or a curious mixture of English and Welsh, such as may be heard in all its varied beauty in the Rhondda valley. In Welsh Wales the language chiefly spoken is Welsh—in it the people talk and sing and pray and pray and make love and curse. In Little England beyond Wales much of the language spoken is neither English nor Welsh, but a Welsh which it requires a knowledge of Dutch and ancient Welsh to understand.—Cardiff Western Mail.

FIRST USE OF AN ARMY.

The first use of an army is for purposes of defence against internal commotion. This statement may surprise some people who think of police only when questions of internal order are concerned and have not for many years witnessed the soldier in evidence in civil commotion or insurrection. But we shall have no true idea of what armies exist for unless we begin with this, perhaps in importance the highest, function of an army. The ultimate guaranty of civil order is, in fact, the soldier. The unarmed policeman is nothing without him, and no one can foresee how necessary the soldier may at any moment become. We have a standing illustration in the case of Ireland, where a police force is maintained which is really a military force, and with a large number of regular soldiers behind it. Another illustration is just being given in South Africa, where the new police force is really being armed and organized as a military body with regular forces behind it. An illustration of a different kind was afforded by the great civil war in America. If the United States had been able to dispose at the beginning of the war of a regular army of 100,000 or even 50,000 men, there would have been no civil war. The losses and miseries of four years' fighting, which the enormous waste of human lives, would have been entirely prevented. It is not cheap for a nation, therefore, even on the score of internal policy, to be without an irresistible army for all purposes of home defence. I put down, then, as the first object of an army, the maintenance of civil order in the state.—The Nineteenth Century.

I HAVE always given proof of anything that I claimed for my Electric Belt, because I know that there are people who claim a great deal more for their remedies than the truth would justify. If you want a remedy which will cure you, it seems wise for you to take the one that has cured others. I have published thousands of testimonials from cured patients and I will pay $1,000 in gold for evidence showing that I have ever used a testimonial which was not true and honest.

Dr. McLaughlin's Electric Belt cures Rheumatism, Lumbago, Pains and Aches in any part of the Body, Weakness in any part of the Body, Tired Feelings, Sleeplessness, Premature Old Age, Weak Stomach, Weak Kidneys, Loss of Vim, Ambition and Youthful Fire.

I don't ask any man to buy my appliance on a speculation. I know that it will cure these troubles and I want my pay only when the cure is complete. I don't ask you to try it one month, nor two months, but long enough to cure you, and when I have cured you you can pay me. If I fail in my task it's my loss, not yours. All you lose is your time, and if my Belt fails to cure you you will have the satisfaction of knowing that the best, strongest and finest electric body appliance in the world—one with 50,000 cures to its credit—has failed, and that there is no cure for you in electricity.
